Constitution Day, also known as "National Law Day", is celebrated in India on 26 November every year to commemorate the adoption of the Constitution of India. On 26 November 1949, the Constituent Assembly of India adopted to the Constitution of India, and it came into effect on 26 January 1950. To mark this momentous occasion, BBA department of Providence Women's College held a symposium on November

The event started with the felicitation of our chief guest M. Raghish Parakkot (Senior Civil Police Officer of city control room, Calicut) who emphasized the importance of Constitution Day and the significance of its celebration. The speaker read out the preamble and explained the history and story behind it. He also enlightened about the journey of our Constitution from its inception to the present day. He reminded the students that the Constitution only gives people the right to pursue but you have to catch it yourself, so we have to stand for our own rights. He further stressed that this day also aims to create awareness of Fundamental Duties as enshrined in the Constitution. It was an interactive session which lasted for almost 1 hour, where the audience shared and cleared their doubts with the chief guest.

VISIT TO BOTANICAL GARDEN

On 19 th February about 37 students of BSc final year students and 3 faculty members of department of zoology visited Botanical garden, University of Calicut. The garden was a dedicated collection, cultivation and display of an especially wide range of plants, which were typically labelled with their botanical names. Established in 1971 in the lush green panoramic, undulating, lateritic, hummocky land of the Calicut University Campus, the Calicut University Botanical Garden (CUBG), has developed into an excellent centre of biodiversity and ex situ conservation of tropical Indian flora and exotic species. The Garden, the brainchild of Prof. B.K. Nayar, the first Head of the Department of Botany, was inaugurated in 1972 by Prof. R.E. Holttum, the then Director, Singapore Botanical Garden. In 1985 the CUBG achieved international status when it was recognized by the International Consortium of Botanic Garden and Centre for World Conservation Strategy. At the entrance on the western side, the visitors are greeted by a display map and a pair of Krishna's buttercup trees (Ficus krishnae). The Garden reception office is located close to the entrance from where the details of the garden are available to the visitors. The garden sprawls over 19.5 acres with a shallow basin encompassed by the slopping terrains except for a narrow gap on the southern side where it slides down to a small transitory reservoir, providing diverse habitats and niches for a variety of plants. The central shallow region is provided with a graceful, placid pool and an octagonal green house and avenues of Royal Palms and oil palms. The 1 km long motorable ring road from the main entrance on the western side touching the greenhouse, ginger zone, Victoria pond, northern gate, bamboosetum and rockery provides an extension to the arboretum and medicinal plant conservatory enabling a quick walk/journey through the exquisite and luxuriant vegetation of myriads of hues and fragrance. Ex situ conservation of the Rare, Endangered and Threatened (RET) plants of South India is the major thrust area of the garden. The garden also holds many curious plants such as insectivorous Nepenthes khasiana, the upside-down tree, Adansonia digitata, the giant Victoria lily, Victoria amazonica and the cannon ball tree, Couroupita guianensis.

BUTTERFLY GARDEN INAUGURATION

On March 10th an initiative of zoology department ;Verona- The Butterfly Garden was Inaugurated by Smt. R Keerthi,IFS,Conservator of Social Forestry of Northern Region. The programme was conducted in association with Social forest extension,Kozhikode. Butterflies bring movement and beauty to a sunny garden. The sight of the delicate, winged creatures flitting from flower to flower delights the young and old.Besides being important pollinators, butterflies impact the whole environment. Their welfare is increasingly compromised by loss of habitat due to deforestation and widespread pesticide use, as well as changes in climate and weather.By planting butterfly gardens, people can help conserve butterflies as well as other native insects and help perpetuate native plant species.

Butterfly gardening provides a recreational activity to view butterflies interacting with the environment. Besides anthropocentric values of butterfly gardening, creating habitat reduces the impacts of habitat fragmentation and degradation. Habitat degradation is a multivariate issue; development, increased use of pesticides and herbicides, woody encroachment, and non-native plants are contributing factors to the decline in butterfly and pollinator habitat. Pollination is one ecological service butterflies provide; about 90% of flowering plants and 35% of crops rely on animal pollination. Butterfly gardens and monarch waystations, even in developed urban areas, provide habitat that increases the diversity of butterflies and other pollinators, including bees, flies, and beetles.
