Existing systems:

Traditional/Existing Systems: These are the conventional methods of data entry, usually typed data entered by growing systems, corresponding to the physical world. They are labor-intensive, require more time for data interaction.

Technological/Existing Systems: These involve existing systems or applications. They are designed for user interaction, offering a more interactive experience. They are often used for data collection, analysis, and data visualization through the application.

Geomatics system

- From a set of raw data is usually processed to generate a digital data set by using the following steps:
  - Data collection
  - Data processing
  - Data storage
  - Data retrieval
  - Data analysis
  - Data visualization
